Values-based Education The Quiet Revolution

Achieve outstanding leading and learning by putting people back at the heart of what you do

Values-based Education is the quiet revolution transforming schools globally. And Neil has been instrumental in making this happen. Putting people, relationships, positive actions and interactions and certain key values and practices at the heart of the school changes everything across the whole organisation. The result permeates not only the classrooms but the entire school community and is genuinely humbling to behold.

On this powerful day-course, Neil will take delegates through the seven principles involved in creating an effective and successful values-based school and demonstrate how doing so can improve learner motivation, staff morale, inspection outcomes and test results too.

Focus: Leadership, teaching and learning, behaviour, school culture. All phases Embedding values education is a research-based practice that Neil developed during his time as a UK head teacher and schools advisor which he now shares across the world where his work has been adopted by hundreds of schools. In demand as an inspiring and life-changing speaker globally, he is the author of From My Heart: Transforming Lives Through Values for the Independent Thinking Press.
