CLAIRE GADSBY

“Life is too short to laminate so make sure your pupils work harder than you do”

“Perhaps we should be marking less often but far more effectively”- Perfect Assessment for Learning

As a qualified teacher, Claire specialises in offering practical strategies and ‘top tips’ to both teachers and learners alike and is regularly described as ‘innovative and inspirational’. One of Claire’s unique selling points is her willingness to ‘walk the talk’, for example, by demonstrating her approaches live in the classroom in addition to offering conventional inset sessions.

Oxford based, and with a Master’s degree specifically in educational management, Claire is ideally placed to help senior managers to address whole school development priorities and is known for her innovative approaches to CPD and training.

Her ongoing research means that she remains at the cutting edge of educational practice. Claire has worked in a range of settings across all phases of education, and across the breadth of the school improvement agenda, both in the UK and overseas, however she remains grounded in classroom practice and in interpreting all issues from the perspective of learning and progress.

Crucially, she is regularly invited to team teach or to deliver exemplar lessons and her ‘Radical Revision Roadshows’ to learners meaning that she remains very close to the reality of the classroom.
